The workshop will be conducted by Canadian charity lawyer Mark Blumberg, who is a partner at Blumberg Segal LLP, lead trainer for Capacity Builders and editor of www.globalphilanthropy.ca, a website dedicated to assisting Canadian charities with foreign activities.

Some of the topics will include how to maintain "direction and control"; what is required in agreements; reporting and monitoring; receipts; local laws, transfers of capital property in development situations; capacity building; recent cases on foreign activities; intermediary arrangements; ongoing instruction; effect of CIDA funding; books and records requirements and important ethical issues for foreign activities.

The presentation will be followed by a discussion of the proposed guidance with an opportunity for participants to ask questions and raise concerns or suggestions for improvement or other comments on the guidance.
